Sam Curran tests negative for COVID-19

England's Sam Curran has tested negative following his COVID-19 test from yesterday.

The Surrey all-rounder, who had a sickness bug has recovered and is currently missing the intra-group three-day match, which ends today, has been self-isolating in his room at the Ageas Bowl.

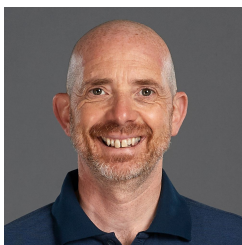

He will now return to training over the next 24-48 hours and will be closely monitored by the team doctor.

Curran will receive a further COVID-19 test on Sunday with the rest of the playing and management group.
